

1. I liked the first assignment the best because it left a lot of room to be creative.

2. The analysis of the two newspapers not enough room to be creative. Too structured.

3. I think my writing has improved. I am able to do what is asked of me when writing a paper instead of doing it how I want to. The writing in this class is different than I am used to so I have had to adapt. I think that my grammar has definitely improved.

4. The class is effective now. Ed. day is a good way to see how you should revise your paper.

- 1) I liked the "research" paper the most because my topic was of great interest to me and I found researching it very interesting.
- 2) The one I liked the least was the recent one: the interview. I found writing it monotonous, pointless, and a waste of time. Interviewing the person in itself was fun, but writing a paper on it just didn't make sense.
- 3) I feel my writing has improved a great deal & that I'm still learning about some new ideas in ~~the~~ ^{new} ~~methods~~ ^{methods} of writing.
- 4) I feel the class is ^{as} effective as it can be. The only way to learn how to write is to write.

- 1) The one from the date of our birth, New York Times article.
It was fun seeing the news on the day we were born.
- 2) This past paper on character sketch was difficult to avoid giving a biography ~~instead of~~ when trying to describe what makes my person special
- 3) Yes my writing has improved definitely by becoming more creative and no longer just copying information out of a book. Also I have improved some on punctuation - not much but some.
- 4) No suggestions.

1. The paper assignments I liked best were the description of a place and the interview. They were interesting and the interview was fun and informative.
2. I liked the research paper least because it was boring.
3. I do feel my writing is improving but I still have to get all the points in at once.
4. Nothing can be done that I can think of.

1) The comparison + contrast of newspapers. Because it was explained exactly what was wanted, it was easy to write because you knew exactly how it would be graded.

2) The Research paper. It was long and the grading was a mystery.

3. My writing is definitely in the process of improving. It is improving as a result of this class, but I have no idea if improvement would be advanced in another class.

4. Set up specific times to meet with each student, especially on the larger papers. You also need to make your corrections more comprehensible.

- 1) I liked the newspaper comparison because it was interesting. We got to choose any two newspapers and it was interesting to see their differences.
- 2) The paper I least liked was the one where we had to get an article from the day of our birth. The subject matter was limited and writing is more fun when there is no research involved.
- 3) I feel my writing has and is improving. I am much more aware of certain things that are stressed in class: telling facts, using quotes, making inferences.
- 4) To improve the class, don't just tell what the next paper assignment is, tell what you want. Also, editor days do not help — unless you looked over it.

November 1985

1. I liked the comparasin paper between an article from the past and one of the present. It was very interesting to go through the microtext and see the papers from the month of my birth. Then, it was fun to search for info pertaining to the subject in reader's guide, other microtext, and encyclopedias.
2. I hated the Newspaper vs Newspaper paper - it was totally a nightmare because there was just too much to compare - and not enough space to do it.
3. My writing is improving. I care about it now, but I have become peranoird about my use of grammar/punctuation - now I'm overcompensating for my grammar problems.
4. ? I don't have any suggestions.

1. I like the first paper the best because we were able to write on anything in a descriptive way

2. The last paper on an interview - it was next to impossible.

3. I think my writing has improved because I am thinking more before, during, and after the paper is written.

4. I wouldn't change a thing.

1. The interview was the paper I liked the best. I liked it the best because it gave me a chance to learn something about someone else's life and her life was quite interesting.

2. The one paper that I liked the least was comparing two newspapers. It just did not catch my interest.

3. I feel my writing is improving. I feel my papers are more organized. They still need work, but they are improving.

4. I feel that if the teacher went over the papers with the students or editors day it would be more effective. A lot of times I would get evaluations back and they did not criticize the paper much. The teacher knows more about where the problems lie and I think having the teacher go over the papers would help immensely.

1.) I liked the interview paper the best because this paper allowed me to get to know someone ^{better} that I ~~at~~ hardly knew. It allowed more freedom and creativity on my part. I had to go out and find some to interview, then I had to write up some interesting questions that I could ask this person. I was totally dependent on myself.

2.) I did not ~~to~~ like the paper where we had to compare and contrast two different newspapers. I did not find this paper interesting or exciting at all.

3.) Yes, I feel that my writing has improved from editing over papers in class and also going to the writing resource center. I feel much more confident about my writing abilities now.

4.) To make the class more effective, and also more interesting, I would suggest that we do more papers that have more interesting topics. The last paper we did was very interesting because this paper allowed each of us to be more independent. ~~can~~ We got to know the person who we interviewed and I thought it was a lot of fun.

① I liked the first paper we did on describing a census place. Writing that paper gave me a chance to be more creative.

② The research paper I did not like, because I don't like just writing on a subject that has been brought up so many times over the past 20 years or so

③ I think it is showing some improvement. Now when I write I can see some of the mistakes I have been making and not only that, I can correct them too
